SATEMBAY, DEC 45, 1897.

A Merry Christmas! this is the season of the year that appeals to the better side of our natures. when everyone desires to contribute something, be the remembrance ever to humble, to the happiness of those about them. For the past few years business conditions have had a depressing effect upon the holiday trade. The disposition was there, but among the masses the means to gratify this desire even in a small way have been lacking. Happily these conditions have unstartally changed and the glad dawn of returning protperity has been manifested by a holiday trade of agusual proportions. This is the general testimony of the merchants of the country. With the quickening of the business pulse the agreemble effects of which have been felt from one end of the country to the other, the people have entered upon the Christmas season with free bearts and generous hands," so that it may be truly said 1897 brings a very Merry Christmas indeed Till-With extends the greetings of the season o all its readers

The Deal Does Not Materialize During the New York campaign the haring Polt and other Democratic Mogwoop shee a resisted that Senator Platt and Croker had a deal and while apparent a fighting each other were the election is over and a D mocratic Mayor is about to assume the dir e top of the affairs of the city as a result of the foolish split in the Republian forces. the preimpary steps of which were carefully arranged by Democratic free traders, the -ame Evening Post declares that Croker bas e-tablished a new surety company to take the bonding business away from the Platt family It adds A nod from a great ruler like Croker is worth thousands to the busin as man who gets it now Shrehan seems to be totally upable to get it, and for that matter o does Platt for the only nod that has teen cast in the Republican direction has been bestowed upon Lou Payn, who is not friendly to Platt and his Quigg, but has favorites of his own ' People now know what their common sense should have told them before, that the taik about a Piat Croker deal was sim-DIV calculated to belo defeat the Republican Mayoralty ticket. The Post is never particular about its methods, but sometimes refrains from giving itself aw a self bas done to this instance

Bryan and Gold

In this country Mr William J Bryan stands for free silver but now that he is in a country where the people erroy all the benefit of a free silver he dec des that gold is good enough for him. The Trit at Senta Claus.

The Philadelphia Press says. The till the ' professional mother,' who is as often maid as matron is making at the poetic month of Santa Claus, which throws a glory of the cerie, facine kind about the great festival of Christman is as ridiculous as it is ineffectual. A world run by philacthropists would be a weird and hopeless aggregation A world from which all the myrtical, mythical and poetical ideas which made up the golden age of the race and now make the "golden age" of childhood were forbidging and conduits a to melancholy and the doleful dumps. And vet it is such a world, for the child in accushty and for grown-ups as a golden memory. which these well-meaning but woeful one for indignation has undifference, if does not make for despair but for bilarto for Don Couxote a diring ar wind milis was never so evidently unsound as those who would get rid of reindeer and sleigh and he fat saint blosself to sutatitute-imagine i '-some sague and veriegated philosophical dea of unselfishness, and, perhaps, instead of the Night Before Christmas" would recommend for recitation a truly sweet poem on "Altruism for Cradle and Crib" The fact of the matter is we are to be cougra ulated as a people that the genial German legera has become with us a national child-myth, and as a transplated custom is in as flourishing and v gorous a condition as in its place of origin. And, moreover, we should telestate oursrives that through picture card, newspaper, magazine and book, all teaching e same story, this particular feature of Unristmas, as well as Christ nes itself as a child festival, is becoming universal in

The arguments against the mythif carried out logically would rule out all lair; i and from a child's lafe, would suppress the habit of the game of "pretending" and make of children not imaginative human beings but wretched prigs to whom a large part of the litera-ture of all ages would be a closed book. Even the slow detection of the innocent fraud of Santa Claus has its interesting side. Most children are as pleased with their own cieverness in discovering the identity of the real givers as they are grieved over the loss of the saint as a personality. And, moreover, the killing off of Santa Claus and all of Grimm's and Andersen's princes and princesses would not better the situation. The myth-making faculty is still strong in thildren. Up to a certain age fiction and facts are convertible terms, and the urreal as inherently probable as the real. Just what this useans today is made clear in Kenneth Grahama's "Golden Age," which it might be well for the "professional methers" to rend. Deprive the children of the sid myths which at least have some of the primitive elements of forcetul feary in them and they will form new ones for themselver, probably less beautiful, but certainly not the namby-pumby truisms the konoclasts would act up for their delectation.

Like every other emotional influence which plays its due part in developing national traits, the emotionalism in parameters of the conoclasts in the conoclasts which plays its due part in developing national traits, the emotionalism in parameters of the conoclasts of the conocl clear in Kenneth Grahame's "Golden in life redeems even the garret of the Whig and Counien poor. Just as socialism presents as its ideal a condition which would be very like a "universal house of correction with all at hard labor," so the Christman-legend iconoclasts would develop conditions in which fact and fad would rule n a world of marlonettes, and very wooden marioneites, and managed by crotchety wires at that

But why think of impossibilities? The pitifut squeak of those who have no oetry in their make-up is about to be lowned in the glad chorus of Chilatmas n honor of the babe at Bethlehem and by the cries of delight from the millions of little ones who stand by Santa Claus as he stands by them.

plans and construct, the building, and the building just dedicated, is evidence of the good judgment of the ladge in s: lecting Mr. Hartford to do the work. The hall is two stories, with a base ment. The first floor is finished into a hall 40x40, to be used for general purpose. -Anticipating the wants of the dancing public, a fine hard wood floor was laid in this hali; the walls and ceiling are finished in hard pine. There is a commodious stage in the rear of the ball

The lodge room proper is on the secand floor and is probably as good as any country lodge room, in the state. The walls and ce ling are finished in steel and present a heautiful appearance; the ante-rooms are conveniently arranged and well planned for the purpose for which they are intended.

The halls and stairways are finished in moors. The dining room le in the base-ment, which is large sind sire, and among other advantages, is supplied with wells of water. The building is provided with lavatories, and is, in every respect, a modern lodge building

The cost of the lot and building was about, four thousand dollars and the members of the lodge have reason to feel nne a puilding in the short time since their organization. The work on the interior of the tuilding has been hurried along in order to dedicate it Christmas ere and, while not fully furnished. proud in having been able to provide so the dance. The club gave a great deal of pleasur to all so fortunate as to attend and it has established an enviable name for itself. The attendance last evening was very large, comprising not only the younger dancing set but many of the older ones who graced the occasion by their presenjoyment. The hours stated were nine and suitable antercome and elects.

The hall had been beautifully dece rated for the ball, perfect taste being evident in the conception and arrange ment, making an effect which was great y admired. Sekenger's resources wer drawn upon to produce the pleasing other triumph, decidedly. The walls bolly was suspended from the chapde liers and palms were placed, about th hall to give a harmony of arrangement. In the corner at one end where the patronesses received the guests. frapelies concealed a Christmaa tree which came into evidence with a brilliant burst later, as we will describe. Ross were on the floor and piano lamps gave a soft light. On either side of the large mirror were hang palms. Above the door was suspended mistletoe, specially imported by Mr. Sekenger. The men's moking room had been transformed into a retreat for rest from the mad which of offices were used for the men's dressing cooms and whist was also played there The young men of the club had made all the arrangements in as secret a manner s possible, not consulting any of the gentler sex in the smallest or greatest letail. The committee of arrangements was composed of Mr. Edwin U. Merrill, Mr. Henry Prentiss and Mr. Frank D. Hight. The praise of their taste, skill and executive ability was unlimited.

The guests assembled early and late all being presented to the patronesses who received very graciously. They were Mrs. I. H. Merrill. Mrs. Charles V. ord, Mrs. Frank Hinckley and Mrs. Franklin, A. Wilson. The ushers who made the presentations were members of the club. They were disgonally across their shirt fronts in regal style broad ribbons of crimson, green and white, the club colors, and in their button holes boutonnieres. The guests numbered shout two hundred and fifty. During the reception Pulleu's symphony orchestra rendered delightful musical selections from the stage, which was banked with palme and lastefully arranged. Shortly after nine o'clock dancing was com tribution of gifts from the beavily laden menced to the inspiring strains of an organization whose name has become a nousehold word for its grand and inspiring music. Director Pullen was in his happiest mood and the result was eutrancing music.

The scene upon the fluor was an ex ceedingly charming one, fair women being arrayed in brilliant and clegant gowns which set off the beauty for which looked braver still with such a heartiful. assemblage of ladies for a relief from their sombre strire. At about closes o'clock a pause gave evidence of the serving of refreshments, which were delicious and elaborate, Mrs. Mary Smith Lutz being the caterer, and the service by her large number of assistants most

After intermission the Portland Fancy was danced and in this a pleasing surprise was spring upon the unsus pecting. After the usual forms the dancers formed in a circle, then the lights were sudden'y turned out and the draperles drawn back from the Christmas tree in the corner which was brilliant'y lighted with candles and covered with some sort of articles which looked attractive and proved to be dainty calerdars specially gotten up for the club. They were tied with tibbon and each wished the possessor a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year from the Bach elors' Club. They were distributed to
